

BEYOND THE MEMORY OF WAR'S ENDLESS REACH

Written by Wayne Enright at Buna in 2008

"Beyond the memory of war's endless reach,
in our hearts and our minds we come to find peace.

Walking slow in the jungle, watching our feet,
or searching horizons from a mountain peak.

At the shore of the ocean, in the first light of dawn,
we find peace in the silence when in stillness we mourn.

In the rain and the thunder and each breath we take,
in the hearts of the people who inhabit this place.

Take time in the morning, for an hour or a minute;
take time for the moments that bring peace to your spirit."

Lest we forget
